Do A Write-Up and Attach To Your Application

The bible places a very high priority on learning through the experiences of life, even higher than classroom learning.

Credit can be awarded when you demonstrate two things:

1. You spent a certain number of hours in a learning experience, and
2. You learned something

Bachelor degrees tend to deal with general studies. Therefore, Life Experience credits applied to undergraduate degrees may come from any and all life learning experiences.

Graduate-level degrees involve specialized training, so any Life Experience credits applied to graduate degrees must be from actual training in the specialized area which relates to the degree title being awarded. This means actual training seminars and courses attended, and books read, not just the fact that you worked in the area.
